RESPONSE TO RESTRICTION REQUIREMENT DATED OCTOBER 21, 2005

In response to the Office Action mailed October 21, 2005 (“Office Action”), Applicants elect, with traverse, species (1) drawn to a naturally occurring mutant of Pseudomonas strain AN5 including AN5rif, as covered by claims 25, 76, 90, 91, 100, 101, 103, 104, 107, 108, 111, and 112.

The Examiner asserts that the genetically engineered mutant of Pseudomonas strain AN5 of claims 26, 27, 105, 106, 109, and 110, and the naturally occurring mutant of the above-elected claims do not relate to a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1, as they lack the same or corresponding technical features. See the Office Action, page 3, lines 16-18.

Applicants respectfully disagree. In particular, both the naturally occurring and genetically engineered Pseudomonas AN5 strains feature enhanced production of sugar acid, which serves to augment their antifungal activity. As such, they share a “special technical feature,” and thus form a “single general inventive concept” within the meaning of PCT Rules 13.1 and 13.2; and 37 CFR § 1.475(a). Applicants therefore respectfully request withdrawal of the restriction requirement.
